THE ART OF DINING OUT—

Dining out is an art. It is not learned in a day and as the right guests at a table are as important as the food and drink if not more so—care must be taken in their selection, writes Charles Hanson Towne, in Harper's. The hostess who gives no thought to the placing of those around her board is a social fool. She does not deserve even the modicum of success. For when people are to be intimate with one another for two hours, imprisoned at an inflexible table, there is a serious aspect of the situation which requires foresight and a profound knowledge of human nature. Many dinners fail because there has been no diagram made of spiritual needs.

E. R. B. and Big Brothers Classes Meet

The E. R. B. Class and the Big Brothers Class of St. Paul's Lutheran Sunday School met at the church Thursday evening, with seventy-five members and friends present. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Frank Hughes, president of the E. R. B. class.

After the devotional service the business of the classes was transacted and the following interesting program was rendered:

Piano Solo—Wilson Ortgiesen.
Quartet—Meadames L. Switzer and J. Strub and Messrs. Claude Switzer and Charles Brown, accompanied by Miss Edna Switzer.
Miss Anna Gelsenhefer gave an interesting talk of her recent trip abroad.

Misses Elsie and Irene Toot played a double duet, which was much enjoyed.

Two fine recitations were given by Miss Phyllis Carson, followed by a harmonica solo by Will Knapp.

Miss Dora Behrens played with a piano solo and a double violin number was given by Miss Lucille Hofmann, accompanied by Miss Josephine Anderson.

Miss Alberta Peterson and Miss Marilyn Johnson favored with a vocal duet, "The Old Rugged Cross." During the social hour refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—

Cover While Sweeping.
Always before you sweep see that no food is left uncovered in the room.

Always Measure.
Measure all ingredients for pastry. Most of the failures are due to incorrect measuring and hence improper proportions.

Use Little Ammonia.
Wash out the bathtub frequently in water to which a few drops of household ammonia has been added. Wipe dry with a cloth.

Comes in Handy.
Always keep cheese on hand in the ice box during the summer. With crackers it makes the ideal dessert after a light meal.

REV. LUMSDEN AND FAMILY VISITED IN DIXON—

Rev. E. C. Lumsden, wife and son of Wheaton, returning from Mt. Vernon, Iowa, where the former Dixon pastor and his wife drove to get their son, who is a student at Cornell college, spent Friday afternoon and night in Dixon. They visited at the home of City Clerk and Mrs. Blake Grover, who joined them in a picnic supper at Lowell Park, where the Lumsdens spent the night at the Lodge, returning to Wheaton this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Winders will leave the first of the week for Maywood where they will be present at the graduation of their grandson, Clayton Winders. Clayton Winders is the son of Fred Winders who carried the Telegraph as one of the city carried boys, for a long time.

W. R. C. TO MEET MONDAY EVENING—

The W. R. C. No. 218, Auxiliary to the G. A. R., will meet Monday at 8 o'clock in G. A. R. hall. Reports of other members who attended the convention will be given at this time. The program for Flag Day will be discussed.

Menus for a Family

Tested by SISTER MARY.

Breakfast—
Grapefruit juice, crisp broiled bacon with liver, creamed potatoes, bran muffins, radishes, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—
Cream of spinach soup, croutons, rice soufflé, milk, tea.

Dinner—
Tomato bouillon, broiled salmon steaks, egg sauce, beets in orange sauce, carrot salad, shredded fresh pineapple, oatmeal kisses, whole wheat bread, milk, coffee.

Children under school age will not eat the liver suggested for breakfast. The fruit juice, potatoes, bacon and muffins with milk make a good breakfast for four-year-olds who have a busy morning out in the sand pile before them.

Oatmeal Kisses.
One cup butter, 1½ cups sugar, 3 eggs, 2½ cup flour, 2 cups rolled oats, 1 cup seeded raisins, ½ cup nut meats, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, few grains salt.

Cream butter and slowly beat in sugar. Add eggs well beaten. Put rolled oats through the fine knife of the food chopper or grind in a coffee grinder. Combine flour, rolled oats, spices, baking powder, salt, nuts and raisins. Mix well and add to first mixture. Knead until well blended. Form in small balls about the size of an English walnut, slightly flattened and placed two inches apart on an oiled and floured baking sheet. Bake in a moderate oven until brown.

These little cakes keep well and are convenient to have on hand for afternoon tea.

Missionary Circle Meeting Tuesday

The Missionary Circle of the Christian church held a most interesting meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. C. L. Kling of Brinton avenue. The members opened the meeting by singing the hymn, "I Need Thee Every Hour," and then repeated the Lord's prayer. At the close of the business session Miss Lillie Cunningham took charge of the meeting, asking all to join in singing, "Wonderful Words of Life." Miss Goldie Cunningham read the Scripture, Matt. V: 41-48, and items of news from various mission fields were read. Miss Esther Belle Mercer favored with a vocal solo, being accompanied by Mrs. Kling, and a very interesting discussion of Japanese homes and home life was conducted by Mrs. Wells. A pleasant social hour followed the meeting.

Ninety-third Birthday Was Observed

Sunday, May 31, sixty-five relatives and friends of P. S. Winslow helped him celebrate his 93rd birthday at the home of his grandson, Bruce Winslow. At noon a bountiful dinner was spread and a weenie roast added much to the fun of the dinner. Although far advanced in years, Mr. Winslow is very active and joined in with the rest in the merry time. He reads his Bible every day and writes many letters to friends and relatives in the east. Mrs. Mary Knoke, a pioneer of Plymouth, Neb., celebrated her 88th birthday with Mr. Winslow and friends. P. S. Winslow had nine grandchildren and five great grandchildren at his dinner Sunday. He is the father of G. A. Winslow with whom he makes his home. After a social afternoon the many friends departed to their various homes, wishing him many more happy days.

LEAVE FOR AUTOMOBILE TRIP TO NEW JERSEY—

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar J. Decker will leave tomorrow on an automobile trip to New Jersey, returning about July 1st.

A HAT WITH A CAPE

We have here one of the trick styles that fashion loves. This hat has a scarf which pulls down from each side and forms a cape to be worn over the suit or frock as an extra decoration. The same material used for a band about the hat is used about the throat to keep the scarf from flowing too freely. It is highly recommended for sportswear.

Edwards-Brew Wedding Monday

An acquaintanceship formed by two instructors of the Amboy public schools came to a culmination here Monday morning when Miss Elizabeth Edwards, daughter of Mayor W. J. Edwards, and Thomas Brew, resigning superintendent of schools, were married by Rev. T. J. Cullen at St. Patrick's parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. Brew left shortly before Monday noon for St. Louis, where Mr. Brew has relatives. They will remain there until the summer term opens at Normal when Mr. Brew will leave to take the six weeks course. At the end of that time Mr. and Mrs. Brew will leave on an auto trip through the east. They plan to visit Niagara Falls and other historic spots of interest.

Mr. Brew will attend the University of Illinois next fall, taking graduate work for his master's degree. Mrs. Brew will remain in Amboy to finish her twenty-fifth year of teaching in the public grade school here. She is principal of the school and will be entitled to a pension at the end of next year.

Mr. Brew leaves Amboy after eight years of faithful work as superintendent. During that time, he has been influential in organizing the Parent-Teacher association and had much to do with the laying out of the campus, track, football, tennis and baseball fields. Largely through his endeavors, the tuition fees of the high school, which were at the time only $2000, were raised to $10,000. The Township High School was placed on the accredited list of the University of Illinois and was also accredited by the North Central association of colleges and High Schools. All of the playground material for the grade schools was put in during Mr. Brew's term here, and libraries have been established in both the grade and high schools.

Residents of Amboy wish Mr. and Mrs. Brew much happiness and prosperity in their years of wedded life. Especially parents with children in school during Mr. Brew's term of office will wish him success where ever they may go after leaving Amboy.—Amboy News.

Miss Padgett Bride of Edward Sharp

Graduation is always an event of much importance in the life of a young person and marriage also is one of the most important events in life. Last evening Miss Vera Audrey Padgett of 1203 West Seventh street, graduated with the class of 1925 from the Dixon Public schools and immediately afterward at the home of her mother in the presence of a few intimate friends and relatives, she was married to Edward Sharp, of Dixon, formerly of Metropolis, Ill.

The young folks were unattended, the witnesses being Miss Ione Padgett and Robert Boyd.

The bride was gowned in her beautiful graduation gown of tan silk and carried roses.

Refreshments were served to the company of guests present. This morning Mr. and Mrs. Sharp left for Metropolis where they will visit his relatives. They will reside in Dixon, Mr. Sharp being one of the attendants at the state hospital. Both Mr. and Mrs. Sharp have many friends here who join in wishing them every happiness. The bride is an active worker in the Christian church and is a charming and highly estimable young woman.

American Legion Auxiliary in Meeting

The American Legion Auxiliary, Dixon Post No. 12, met in regular session Wednesday afternoon in G. A. R. hall with a very good attendance. The usual order of business was observed.

The president, Mrs. Stevens, who has been ill so long, hopes to be with the Auxiliary at the next meeting.

Mr. Hunt, of the Y. M. C. A., was present and told the ladies about the good work "their boy" was doing in the Y. The order voted to send this boy to Camp Yomechas, for ten days outing conducted by the Y. M. C. A. ## Visited Peony Growers Friday

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hey, in company with Meadames Lee Lambert and Audrey Higby drove to Arlington Heights yesterday and spent the day with Klehm Brothers Co., peony growers of that place.

The Klehms have thirty acres in peonies. They list 207 varieties, many of which cost them $25 per root. They were quite as much injured by the unfavorable weather conditions as Dixon growers. They had only twenty-five men cutting buds, where ordinarily they would have had hundreds. They are only twenty-five miles from Chicago. These men go back and forth from the city daily. The three Klehm Brothers have a large nursery business together with apple orchards and green houses, where they do an immense florists' business.

Miss Rudolph Bride of Geo. Bartholomew

This morning at 10:30 o'clock a simple yet impressive marriage service was solemnized by Rev. A. S. Moore, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, Miss Florence Edna Rudolph and George Irving Bartholomew, both of Dixon, being united in the holy bonds of matrimony at this time. The young folks were attended by a sister of the bride, Miss Caroline Rudolph of Chicago and Edward Zeidler of Dixon.

The bride made a beautiful picture in her gown of maize colored canton crepe with an overdress of ecru colored embroidered net, with which she wore a maize colored hat. Her flowers were gorgeous Galli Cured roses.

The maid of honor wore a charming gown of pale green canton crepe with hat in the same shade. Her flowers were pink roses and sweet peas. Following the ceremony a breakfast was served to the relatives and a few intimate friends at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Rudolph, 1010 Fargo avenue. The table was laden with pink and white roses and peonies.

At 1 o'clock today Mr. and Mrs.

ETHEL: The Day of Miracles is Past

Bartholomew left for Los Angeles, Cal., where they will make their future home, the bridegroom to embark in business in that city.

The bride's traveling gown was a dainty affair of blue bandoline, with hat matching.

Mrs. Bartholomew has been one of Dixon's most successful teachers, teaching the second grade in the E. C. Smith school. She is a very charming and attractive young woman and has hosts of friends here who are loath to have her leave Dixon. Mr. Bartholomew, who has been employed here for some time, also has hosts of friends who congratulate him and wish him every happiness.

GIBBONS KNOCKED OUT IN TWELFTH; HIS WIFE IS ILL

New York, June 6—(AP)—The shadow of a heavyweight who has climbed to pugilistic fame out of the trenches of the World War today stretched across the path of Jack Dempsey.

After eleven rounds of fighting without thrills at the Polo Grounds last night, the former A. E. F. champion sent the game veteran from St. Paul down for the count, under a smashing right to the chin in the 12th. In the round before the crowd had booed the two men for failure to put up the hot fight which had been expected but apparently Tunney alone was aware that his foe was willing under the gruelling fire at close quarters. After one minute and 36 seconds of the 12th round, Tunney put out a right which felled Gibbons in a neutral corner, so dazed him that he was unable to get his bearing as he arose. Tunney landed another wallop to the chin and this time Gibbons was finished. The referee counted ten before he could recover.

While Gibbons fought his wife lay ill in a St. Paul hospital. The fighter's friends said that worry over her condition had something to do with his defeat.

Al Simmons, Athletics star outfielder, whose batting has been one of the sensations of the past three weeks, went hitless against the Tigers after having batted out one or more hits in 23 consecutive games.

Wanninger, the Yanks young shortstop, did some long distance hitting against the Browns, smashing out a double, triple and home run.

Babe Pinelli's double in the tenth enabled the Reds to shut out the Braves. The blow came after Roush had singled and Walker stroled.

First Baseman Burrus of the Braves got two of the three hits off Luque and R. Smith poled the other.

Pitcher Rhem of the Cardinals received a vicious blow on the shin when liner off Terry's bat in the sixth almost knocked him over. He had to be helped off the field.

Catcher Snyder of the Glants smashed out a brace of four baggers and each time two mates were waiting on the bases. Zach Wheat of the Dodgers also bugged a pair, his first with two mates on and the second time with none on base. Ken Williams of the Browns was the only American Leaguer to knock out a pair of circuit drives. There was one man on base when he crashed his second four-ply blow.

NATIONAL BURGLAR INSURANCE.

"I saw America twenty years ago, and I am amazed at its growth," says Dean Inge of London. "It has raced ahead of Europe. We (the Europeans) have only progressed slowly, but America has made enormous speed." Already it is probably the greatest country in the world. It has such a possibility that it is invulnerable. It can devote all its energies to improving itself, whereas Europe has to spend a quarter of its income on a sort of burglar insurance against war."

It is very kind of the reverend gentleman to say all this, and most of his remarks are probably deserved. But doesn't he strain, just a little, the idea that America is able to devote "all its energies" to self-development?

Looking into the budget of the United States government for the current year, we find that we are spending something like $1,300,000,000 on the war and navy departments and the Veterans' bureau, with a couple of hundred millions for military pensions and $865,000,000 for interest on the public debt—nearly all military debt, and practically all because we have to have burglar insurance against Europe. This makes about $2,100,000,000, nearly two-thirds of the government's income, for the expense of burglar insurance. Here is quite a little "burglar insurance" and burglar damages for a country which the dean enviously calls "invulnerable."

FEWER JOKES ON TEACHERS.

Recently the department of superintendence of the National Education association recorded its opinion on an important subject in these words:

"The department of superintendence recognizes with satisfaction a tendency of the press to cease a traditional and stupid practice of ridiculing by cartoons or alleged humorous paragraphs the fine women who constitute a majority of the teaching corps of America. No decent allegiance to American ideals can be maintained if public prints, while claiming to support public education, continue to throw disrespect on the women who in so large a degree constitute the educators."

It is a rather complicated statement of a simple fact. There is less ridiculing of teachers and the teaching profession. Partly, the crude form of humor which made them the butt of its jests has given place to other forms of wit. But chiefly there is a more widespread respect for education. More people than ever before are seeking school education of one sort or another and they have an increased respect for the teachers who present it to them. Also better pay for teachers and higher standards of preparation for teachers of all grades are doing their share to bring about the substitution of respect for ridicule.

CIVILIZATION.

If there is one thing we Americans pride ourselves on, it is that we have reached a higher state of civilization than any nation before us ever attained.

Mechanically, we are the marvels of the age. We soar over mountains, talk across the continent without wires, take moving pictures beneath the sea, build machines that can do everything but think—yet isn't there still a little room for growth?

Aren't we a bit one-sided? Don't we worship the machine a little bit too much? Wouldn't it help just a little, if we worked a while on the theory that what happens to our minds is almost as important as what happens to our bodies?

OYSTERS.

Dan Duffy, of the Massachusetts coast, has opened a million oysters. That's been his way of making a living for 50 years. Speaking of monotony of civilized industry, how'd you like his job?

Dan hasn't eaten an oyster for years, which is a natural reaction. The clerk in the candy store rarely tastes sweets. Do you realize that oysters cost over seven times as much as they used to? Dan says: "They sold for 15 cents a quart in 1872. Now they are $1.15 a quart." We refer this and similar cases to the statistics sharps who claim the cost of living is only two-thirds higher than it used to be.

THE LAW.

Heads of bar associations, and other prominent legal lights are much given to addresses lamenting the growing unwillingness of the citizenry to submit all grievances and arguments to the "due process of law."

Here is something for these gentlemen to ponder on: isn't the chief reason for this unwillingness a dim feeling on the common man that courts are not so much places for getting exact justice as they are arenas for clever lawyers to stage brilliant duels, in which the plain rights and wrongs of the case are often lost sight of?

Secretary Jardine threatens that he will revoke the charter of the Chicago board of trade as a contract exchange unless immediate remedies are taken to stop gambling operations. The investigation going on, he says, indicates that the unprecedented fluctuations in future grain quotations between January 2 and April 3 have been brought about by manipulation by the board. Efforts have heretofore been made to close or reform the pit. Possibly Jardine will be more successful.

"The hand that writes the pay checks should control the schools," says Bryan.

How would Mr. Bryan like to take his own medicine? The "pay check" of the schools is written by the taxpayer—that is, the property-holding class.

What would they have taught the children about "sixteen to one"? What would they say of public ownership? How do they stand on the tariff? What do they think of "a private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable?"

How frightened were they of the bogaboo of "Imperialism"? How Pacificist were they, when the war was brewing?

Have they, in fact, ever agreed with Mr. Bryan about anything? Have they ever approved of him personally?

If the schools are to be the seats of doctrinal propaganda, and the writers of the pay checks are to determine the dogma, where would Mr. Bryan have got off?

THINKING IS DONE BY MACHINE

The most purely "mental" faculty we have is the mathematical. On it alone we can be completely impersonal, unemotional, and infallible. The whole world agrees that twice two is four, and that the sum of the angles of a triangle is equal to two right angles.

There is no difference of opinion, no conflict of emotions, and no personal equation. The same can be said completely, of any other mental process.

What shall we say, then, when we discover that this most completely mental of all our faculties is the only one which can be completely duplicated by a mindless, soulless machine?

Adding machines are commonplace, and the census bureau has more complicated ones that will subtract, multiply, divide, compute percentages, and compile averages.

Now comes a Princeton man and devises a machine to handle the most abstruse propositions of higher mathematics. This one has done nothing worse than the higher algebra of variables, in which it does in a few seconds more than a human computer could do in hours, but it would not take much improvement to make it work integral and differential calculus.

There are only a few mathematicians in the world who understand calculations of the Einstein theory. We shall have a dead machine, any day, that can work them perfectly.

Is our most boasted mental process really mental? If so, what is the machine? Write your own sermon.

SCORE ONE FOR THE HEADLINE WRITER

The headline writer, in his search for short words to fit big type in narrow columns, has been responsible for many outrages on the English language. But once in a while he enriches it, also.

For instance, the writer who, forced to find a way to say "palmists, fortune tellers and clairvoyants" in ten letters, called them "spook fakes." That atones in part for "Hun," "flays," and "probe."

But, incidentally, when you criticize the headline writer for not pressing all the conditions, exceptions and nuances, count his letters and try saying it yourself in the same limit.

One good thing, at least, comes out of evolution. King Albert has acceded to Carl Akely's request, and set aside a game refuge in Africa where the few remaining gorillas can live, multiply, and be studied but not hunted or captured.

With proper protection, there is no reason why these unique apes should not thrive. They are not fierce, Akely says, and, relieved from fear, they may become really friendly.

Since, in development and intelligence, they are at least as far above the monkeys as man is above them, this one reserve may throw much light on the beginnings of mind and of society.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

"Drink," said he holding it up.

"Do you know any more stories about fairies?" asked Nancy. "Or knights?" asked Nick.

Mi O' Mi laughed. "You two certainly know what you want," said he. "How would it do if I told you a story about both a fairy and a knight?"

"That would be fine!" said the twins. "Do please begin, Mister Story Teller."

"All right," said Mi O' Mi. "The last story I told you was about bad fairies and a good young man. This one will be about good fairies and a bad young man—or a knight, as he really was."

"In the good old days young men proved their strength and courage by jousting. That means, they put on coats-of-mail, a sort of uniform of iron that even covered their heads, and put chains over their horses to protect them, too, and then went out and fought with long spears."

"It was a sort of game, really, that young men played as they play football now. Only it was more dangerous, and often they got badly hurt, in spite of the iron coats they wore. They always fought on horseback and they tied the colors of their lady loves on their lances to bring them luck."

"Of course, every young knight was anxious to win," said Mi O' Mi. "The girls in those days seemed to admire courage and strength even more than they do now. And often if a knight was defeated in a jousting match, it meant that he had also lost his sweetheart."

"Well, this story is about one of these young knights called Algard, and as he rode away to the place where the tournament was to be, he was thinking of his lady love called Alys. She wasn't really his, yet, but she had promised to be if he won the jousting match this day."

"Algard was very handsome, but he was rather fierce. And when he was very much in earnest about anything, his face grew almost ugly."

"It was this that had made Lady Alys hesitate about marrying him."

"I think our looks do change with our thoughts," said Nancy.

"Not a doubt of it," agreed Mi O' Mi. "That is why we should be so careful of our thoughts."

"Then what happened?" asked Nick impatiently.

"Well, sir," said Mi O' Mi, "as Algard rode along he was thinking so deeply of Lady Alys and whether or not he should win the jousting match, that he never noticed that his horse had strayed from the path, until he was lost in the woods."

"He tried every way and direction, but find the path again he could not. He was helpless, lost, it seemed."

"To make matters worse, it was a hot day, and the iron armor he wore was very uncomfortable. He was thirsty and tired and discouraged. If he lost the match he would lose Lady Alys. And over the thought he was rapidly losing his temper also."

"Suddenly on a green mound ahead of him appeared a little green man with a cup shaped like a golden horn, full of fairy wine."

"Drink," said he holding it up.

"Algard seized the cup and drained it."

"But then the fairy held up his hand for the golden horn. Algard tightened his hold on the goblet and dashed off into the forest."

"For one thing, the fairy wine had shown him the path instantly, and for another thing, such strength suddenly ran through his veins as he had never felt before. He felt as

Is Today Your Birth Anniversary?

- SATURDAY, JUNE 6—If today is your birthday, you have a simple, child-like trusting nature. You have an entirely wrong picture of the ways of the world and some day some big "bump" will disillusion you. Since your early youth you will have strong convictions and generally live up to them. The first marriage of people born this day result in happiness in only about half the cases. Whether you are a man or a woman you will abhor flirting.
- SUNDAY, JUNE 7—If today is your birthday, unusual events will occur in your life, during three years. These are the years when you are 18, 36 and 54. At least two of these unusual occurrences should bring you great happiness. Whether you display it or not, you have a kind and compassionate nature, which causes you to desire to aid all classes of people. Your marriage, which probably will occur at an early age, should result in great happiness.

Several items were omitted last week from this column owing to Decoration Day, among which was the home talent play given by the seniors of the high school. Our neighboring town of Ashton is to have band concerts this summer having secured money enough to hire the West Brooklyn Band. There is a move on foot to try and secure the "Y" band of Dixon to give concerts here this summer. It would be fine if it could be accomplished as the "Y" band is one of the best this side of Chicago and those who heard them here Decoration Day will be delighted to hear them again. The concert they gave Decoration Day at the Camp Grounds was one of the best ever given here.

Memorial day was most fittingly observed, as is always with Franklin Grove. The crowd was the largest that has been here in many years and the people from a distance gathering here at that time makes it not only a memorial day but a home coming as well. The procession formed at the Presbyterian church directed by Marshal of the Day, F. D. Kelly. The Dixon "Y" Boys Band headed the procession, being followed by the American Legion, the Boy Scouts, the G. A. R. in autos, the children laden with flowers and wreaths to decorate the graves. The program at the cemetery was carried out as advertised last week. After the services the line of march was again formed and marched to the Camp Grounds where memorial services were held. The male quartet, composed of Messrs. Sitter, Blocher, Sunday and Halderman, favored with two numbers. Rev. T. L. Lyons offered prayer. Mrs. Harry Dysart gave a reading which was most graciously received and was very well given. Rev. Prentiss Hovey Case of Dixon delivered the address of the day. The hour band concert in the evening and the picture show immediately after, closed one of the most beautiful Decoration Days on record.

The Commencement exercises Friday night at the Methodist church drew one of the largest crowds that ever attended a commencement in this town. The program was especially good. The community orchestra furnished the music. Rev. Sitter rendered a vocal solo, F. J. Blocher played a cornet solo, all of which were heartily received. The address of the evening was given by Rev. H. A. Studebaker, pastor of the Congregational church of Beloit, Wis. Before being the address he mentioned that several years ago he united in marriage in his church Mr. and Mrs. Russell Burleigh, and that Rev. Isaac Prantz of this place married him and his wife, so he felt he was no stranger here after all. His address was one of the best ever given on an occasion of that kind. Prof. Loveland made a few pointed remarks before presenting the diploma to the fourteen graduates and to the eleven graduates from the eighth grade. After his remarks Miss Seals, with their diplomas and Miss Seals, were equally as happy with them as was the Seniors with theirs. ## CHAPTER IX—Continued

After breakfast we unpacked the bundle in which our leader had brought his climbing accessories. From it he took a coil of the strongest and lightest rope, a hundred and fifty feet in length, with climbing irons, clamps, and other devices. Lord John was an experienced mountaineer, and Summerlee had done some rough climbing at various times, so that I was really the novice at rock work of the party; but my strength and activity may have made up for my want of experience.

It was not in reality a very stiff task, though there were moments which made my hair bristle upon my head. The first half was perfectly easy, but from there upwards it became continually steeper until, for the last fifty feet, we were literally clinging with our fingers and toes to tiny ledges and crevices in the rock. I could not have accomplished it, nor could Summerlee, if Challenger had not gained the summit (it was extraordinary to see such activity in so unwieldy a creature) and there fixed the rope round the trunk of the considerable tree which grew there. With this as our support, we were soon able to scramble up the jagged wall until we found ourselves upon the small grassy platform, some twenty-five feet each way, which formed the summit.

The first impression which I received when I had recovered my breath was of the extraordinary view over the country which we had traversed. The whole Brazilian plain seemed to lie beneath us, extending away and away until it ended in dim blue mists upon the farthest skyline. In the foreground was the long slope, strewn with rocks and dotted with tree ferns; farther off in the middle distance, looking over the saddle-back hill, I could just see the yellow and green mass of bamboo through which we had passed; and then, gradually, the vegetation increased until it formed the huge forest which extended as far as the eyes could reach, and for a good two thousand miles beyond. I was still drinking in this wonderful panorama when the heavy hand of the Professor fell upon my shoulder.

"This way, my young friend," said he, "vestigia nulla retrorsum. Never look rearward, but always to our glorious goal." The level of the plateau, when I turned, was exactly that on which we stood, and the green bank of bushes, with occasional trees, was so near that it was difficult to realize how inaccessible it remained. At a rough guess the gulf was forty feet across, but, so far as I could see, it might as well have been forty miles. I placed one arm round the trunk of the tree and leaned over the abyss. Far down were the small dark figures of our servants, looking up at us. The wall was absolutely precipitous, as was that which faced me.

"This is indeed curious," said the creaking voice of Professor Summerlee.

I set to work in earnest upon the trunk, taking turn and turn with Sir John.

I turned, and found that he was examining with great interest the tree to which I clung. That smooth bark and those small, ribbed leaves seemed familiar to my eyes. "Why," I cried, "it's a beech!"

"Exactly," said Summerlee. "A fellow-countryman in a far land." "Not only a fellow-countryman, my good sir," said Challenger, "but also, if I may be allowed to enlarge your simile, an ally of the first value. This beech tree will be our saviour."

"By George!" cried Lord John, "a bridge!" "Exactly, my friends, a bridge! It is not for nothing that I expended an hour last night in focusing my mind upon the situation. I have some recollection of once remarking to our young friend here that G. E. C. is at his best when his back is to the wall. Last night you will admit that all our backs were to the wall. But where will power and intellect go together, there is always a way out. A drawbridge had to be found which could be dropped across the abyss. Behold it!"

It was certainly a brilliant idea. The tree was a good sixty feet in height, and if it only fell the right way it would easily cross the chasm. Challenger had swung the camp over his shoulder when he ascended. Now he handed it to me.

"Our young friend has the thews and sinews," said he. "I think he will be the most useful at this task. I must beg, however, that you will kindly refrain from thinking for yourself, and that you will do exactly what you are told."

Under his direction I cut such gashes in the side of the tree as would insure that it should fall as we desired. It had already a strong, natural tilt in the direction of the plateau, so that the matter was not difficult. Finally I set to work in earnest upon the trunk, taking turn and turn with Sir John. In a little over an hour there was a loud crack, the tree swung forward, and then crashed over, burying its branches among the bushes on the farther side. The severed trunk rolled to the very edge of our platform, and for one terrible second we all thought it was over. It balanced itself, however, a few inches from the edge, and there was our bridge to the unknown.

All of us, without a word, shook hands with Professor Challenger, who raised his straw hat and bowed deeply to each in turn. "I claim the honor," said he, "to be the first to cross to the unknown land—a fitting subject, no doubt, for some future historical painting."

He had approached the bridge when Lord John laid his hand upon his coat.

"My dear chap," said he, "I really cannot allow it."

"Cannot allow it, sir!" The head went back and the beard forward.

"When it is a matter of science, don't you know, I follow your lead because you are by way of being a man of science. But it's up to you to follow me when you come into my department."

"Your department, sir?" "We all have our professions, and soldiering is mine. We are, according to my ideas, invading a new country, which may or may not be chockfull of enemies of sorts. To barge blindly into it for want of a little common sense and patience isn't my notion of manly action."

The remonstrance was too reasonable to be disregarded. Challenger tossed his head and shrugged his heavy shoulders. "Well, sir, what do you propose?" "For all I know there may be a tribe of cannibals waiting for lunch time among those very bushes," said Lord John, looking across the bridge. "It's better to learn wisdom before you get into a cooking-pot; so we will content ourselves with hoping that there is no trouble waiting for us, and at the same time we will act as if there were. Therefore, and we will fetch up the four rifles, together with Gomez and the other. One man can then go across and the rest will cover him with guns, until he sees that it is safe for the whole crowd to come along."

Challenger sat down upon the cut stump and groaned his impatience, but Summerlee and I were of one mind that Lord John was our leader when such practical details were in question. The climb was a more simple thing now that the rope dangled down the face of the worst part of the ascent. Within an hour we had brought up the rifles and a shot-gun. The half breeds had ascended also, and under Lord John's orders they had carried up a bale of provisions to ease our first exploration should be a long one. We had each bandoliers of cartridges.

"Now, Challenger, if you really insist upon being the first man in," said Lord John, when every preparation was complete.

"I am much indebted to you for your gracious permission," said the angry Professor; for never was a man so intolerant of every form of authority. "Since you are good enough to allow it, I shall most certainly take it upon myself to act as pioneer upon this occasion."

Seating himself with a leg overhanging the abyss on each side, and his hatchet slung upon his back, Challenger hopped his way across the trunk and was soon at the other side. He clambered up and waved his arms in the air. "At last!" he cried, "at last!" I gazed anxiously at him, with a vague expectation that some terrible fate would dart at him from the curtain of green behind him. But all was quiet, save that a strange, many-colored bird flew up from under his feet and vanished among the trees.

The Tangle

LETTER FOUND IN ZOE ELLINGTON'S ROOM ADDRESSED TO MRS. LESLIE PRESCOTT

My Dear Mrs. Prescott: I have just had a strange and alarming telephone call which you and Mr. Carton overheard.

I am writing this the moment I have returned to my room for I am sure that soon I shall have to disappear.

Oh, Mrs. Prescott, no one in the world has ever been so kind to me as you since my brother died, and I would give my life for you or either of the babies. In fact, I may have to do so.

So if you find that I have gone out of your life, remember I have only done it because I could not help it and because it was the only way that I could atone for what has gone before in my life—mistakes for which I was not wholly to blame. I was so young and so alone.

Dear Mrs. Prescott, I did not know that anyone so sweet and kind and loving could live in this ugly old world. Whatever anyone may tell you, whatever you may be prone to think of me, when I am gone, remember that all the time I have been to be as nearly like you as I might be.

ZOE.

Telephone Conversation of John Alden Prescott

"Please give me Spring 1877."

"Is this Police Commissioner Laid law?"

"Bill, this is John Alden Prescott talking. You know about the robbery and suspected murder at my house? Well, the newspaper accounts do not come very near the truth."

"The police are just as far away."

"I would appreciate it, Bill, if you would come up to my house. I have some things I want to show you as well as facts that Mrs. Prescott and I want to put before you. The whole thing is very mysterious."

"I'll be right up."

"That's awfully decent of you, Bill. Thank you so much. I know you're busy but I know you knew Syd Carton almost as well as I, and you would know how impossible it would be for him to do anything underhanded, let alone criminal, and the police seem to be working on that theory."

"But, this girl—"

"That's ridiculous, Bill! Sydney Carton is a confirmed bachelor who wouldn't elope with anyone much less a young girl like Zoe Ellington, and even if they had run away to get married what about the blood and the pearls. Certainly Syd would never steal anything."

"I'll be up in half an hour."

"That's great! I'll stay here until you come."

"Fine! My wife will be here then. So long."

Women Who Have Found Driving a Tiring, Joyless Task—

now are turning to the car which makes driving a delightful, thrilling, healthful pastime.

Hundreds of women who find driving ordinary cars an unpleasant task, have turned or are turning to the Chrysler Six.

Hundreds of others, who had actually given up driving because they found it too difficult, too nerve straining, have discovered that driving a Chrysler Six is a delightful pastime.

Hundreds of young women and girls—those whose pride is smartness, beauty, and alertness—are preferring the Chrysler to all other cars. In the most exclusive private schools, in the Junior League, in the smartest social groups, one Chrysler sells another—a growing preference that makes the youthful and red-blooded everywhere, aspire to Chrysler ownership.

Because of its ease of control—which women everywhere assure us is entirely unequaled—women have, in a special sense, made the Chrysler Six their car.

Never, say women who have driven it, has there been a car so easy to handle as the Chrysler Six.

It is extraordinarily convenient to manipulate into the average city parking space.

Of course, the unique delight which comes to a Chrysler Six owner every time she or he takes the wheel, is due not to a few features—but to every feature of this remarkably engineered car.

Every woman who loves driving but finds it a task should be delighted to learn the vast difference of driving the Chrysler Six. We are eager to send a car to your door for a demonstration, yourself at the wheel if you wish to experience the newest thrill in motoring.

afford easy parking. It rides as solidly as a two-ton car; it takes the bumps as easily as the ordinary Leviathans of the road.

And wherever the Chrysler goes all women admire its grace and beauty, and envy the delighted possessor of so smart a vehicle.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton © 1925 NEA SERVICE INC.

THE STORY SO FAR:

GLORIA GORDON, beautiful flapper, married DICK GREGORY, a struggling lawyer. Her idea of marriage is fun and fine clothes . . . but no work or children.

She refuses pointblank to do her own housework, and hires a maid. But Dick has to let the maid go, because he can't afford to pay her wages. Gloria has swamped him with debts for her clothes and a new automobile.

She becomes infatuated with STANLEY WAYBURN, an actor. She lends him money, and finally, when he leaves town to go to New York, Gloria follows him. He spurns her, telling her he has just married a Russian actress. Then Gloria tries to land a job as a chorus girl and fails. Discouraged, she comes home to Dick.

He takes her back, but not as his wife. One night Gloria leaves him to work late at the office with SUSAN BRIGGS, his secretary. While Gloria is at home alone, the house is robbed. Dick doesn't get home until almost morning. Gloria wonders if he was with Miss Briggs all that time. But next morning she learns that he was at the house of DR. JOHN SEYMOUR, who had killed himself because of the love affair that existed between his wife MAY and JIM CAREWE.

Gloria goes to Dick's office to tell him about the robbery, and to make one last attempt to win him again. A lot of burglaries in that neighborhood lately. . . .

Now GO ON WITH THE STORY!

"MR. GREGORY'S gone out to lunch," Miss Briggs told Gloria. "But he ought to be back soon. If you'd like to, you can sit down and wait for him. You won't disturb me at all."

She went on with her typewriting. Gloria glanced down at her smooth head, bent over the machine.

" . . . She guessed she had a perfect right to sit in her own husband's office without waiting for Miss Briggs' permission! And if she wanted to disturb Miss Briggs, she could do that, too. Watch her!"

She took off her hat and tossed it down carelessly on Miss Briggs' desk. It bounded off onto the floor.

Gloria picked it up and handed it to Miss Briggs.

"Just brush that thing off," she said impudently.

Miss Briggs looked up at her in surprise. Then she flushed deeply. But without a word she wiped the dust from Gloria's hat with a hand towel that she took from a drawer of her desk.

Then she hung it on the rack behind her.

"Look up your burglary insurance, while you're on your feet, Miss Briggs," Gloria snapped.

From under her thick lashes, she watched Miss Briggs go to the files on the other side of the room, and look for the insurance papers.

"Here they are, Mrs. Gregory," she said quietly, as she handed them to Gloria.

"And now call up the police and tell them we had a robbery at our house last night," Gloria directed her. "Tell them all our table silver was stolen. It was worth about $200 . . . in case they ask you."

Miss Briggs stood looking down at her for a moment.

"Wouldn't it be better if you talked to them yourself, Mrs. Gregory?" she asked in a low tone.

"They're sure to ask a lot of questions that I won't know how to answer."

Gloria met her look, coldly. "Will you please do what I told you to?" she drawled.

Miss Briggs bit her lips. It was on the end of her tongue to tell Gloria that not she, but Dick, was her employer. But, because of Dick, she said nothing.

She picked up the phone and called the police. They asked a dozen questions, and at last Gloria took the instrument from her, and answered them.

"I'll send a man out right away to look things up," the deep, masculine voice at the other end of the wire told her. "There have been a lot of burglaries in that neighborhood lately. . . .

As Gloria turned away from the telephone, it suddenly occurred to her that there was no one at the house to admit the man from police headquarters when he got there.

"Oh, well," she thought, carelessly, "what's the diff? Life can come back later." She didn't want him going through her house, now, anyway. The beds were still unmade, although it was afternoon, and the dirty dishes from yesterday's lunch were still piled in the greasy sink.

For some reason or other, an old English poem that her mother used to tell her when she was lazy, flashed into Gloria's brain. It told about a collier's sloppy wife, who loved to gossip and hated to work. One evening he was killed at the mine. And when they brought his body home "the slut ran up to make the bed."

The poem said with brutal frankness, "Oh, well, after she had seen him, she'd go home and straighten the house, Gloria promised herself. She would honestly try to be a better housewife from now on. . . .

"Won't you have a lettuce sandwich?" Miss Briggs' low voice broke in upon her thoughts.

She had opened a package of sandwiches, and a thermos bottle stood on her desk. From it came a thin curl of steam and the fragrant smell of coffee.

"I always bring my lunch from home," Mrs. Gregory. "I find I can't afford to eat around at restaurants. . . . Will you have some coffee with me?"

"No, thanks," Gloria answered coldly. "I was very hungry but she couldn't very well eat salt with Miss Briggs when she hated her as she did."

And she did hate her! She hated Miss Briggs' lovely voice and the dainty way she ate . . . everything about her.

Gloria watched her slyly. There really was something attractive about the woman. But, of course, she wasn't pretty the way Gloria was!

SHE curled herself up like a kitten in a big chair in the sunny corner by the windows. She took out her vanity case and looked at herself in its little mirror. Then her eyes traveled to Miss Briggs' face.

"No—Susan Briggs at her best couldn't hold a candle to her when it came to looks. Her eyes were lovely, but there were fine crow's feet at the corners of them. And there were shadows at the corners of Miss Briggs' mouth that would be deep, carved wrinkles in a few years."

Was it possible that Dick was in love with this plain little woman who was at least eight years older than his beautiful young wife?

But perhaps he had tired of her just because she was his wife, Gloria thought gloomily. She had heard May Seymour often say in her flip-bitter way that no man loved his wife after the first flush of married life was gone. . . .

May Seymour! She of all women, had least reason for saying a thing like that! She must have known all along how desperately Dr. John cared for her.

Poor May! She was fair game for any gossip today! Everybody's tongue was wagging about her. What a life she was facing! For years and years and years people would remember that her husband had killed himself because of her love affair with another man. . . . The story would hound her to the very day she died.

No matter where she went, the tale would follow her. No matter in what remote corner of the world she tried to hide, there would always be some one who knew all about her. For there always was somebody. . . . People never let you forget your shame.

And what would Jim do now? Would he marry May when the scandal had quieted down? . . . Gloria doubted it. Jim wasn't the "marrying kind."

And suppose he did marry May? Wouldn't the memory of Dr. John always be between them, like a ghostly hand keeping them apart? Of course it would. . . .

He hadn't been able to keep his wife away from Jim Carewe, while he lived. But now that he was dead it would probably be easy enough. "Ugh!" Gloria shivered at the thought of the power the dead can have over the living. . . .

MISS BRIGGS looked up at her. She had cleared away her lunch, and was reading a thin little book.

"Beautiful"

Announcing the New 4-Door Coach-Brougham

Beautiful—is the word which will come spontaneously to your lips when first you gaze upon this new Coach-Brougham now announced and ready for delivery.

Rickenbacker was (and still is) first to offer a 4-door Coach-Brougham.

This model has been a tremendous success.

Demand has been overwhelming.

Fundamentally this Rickenbacker idea was right—unanimous acclaim proved that.

Now comes the new model, which in all respects is the same—but refined, perfected.

Here is a Coach-Brougham which is truly beautiful.

Here is a triumph in body design.

Here is beauty of line—the effect of a custom-built body at a price made possible only by volume production.

Here is an achievement in coach craft—here is art combined with science.

Here is luxury at an amazingly low price.

Mounted on that identical "Six" chassis with which "Cannon Ball" Baker has made so many transcontinental and cross-country records during the past six months, this new Rickenbacker is amazing in performance.

And now, it is as beautiful to look upon as it is wonderful in action.

Possesses all the Rickenbacker features, of course—those features which the Rickenbacker incorporates today, which are two years at least in advance.

Tandem fly wheels; double depth frame; "cradle springs"; air cleaner; dilution eliminator; ball bearing steering; balloon tires and 4-wheel brakes.

Here is the most advanced car of its time—both as to chassis and body.

See this new 4-door Coach-Brougham.

It's a rare example of harmonious contrasts—each line seems to complement each curve.

"Beautiful!"—the one word expresses it all.

Drive this Rickenbacker Six yourself—it will be a revelation to you.
